B.S.A. SPONSORS APARTHEID PROTEST

by Adrian Summers

As we all know, Friday, Oct. 11th was the National Day of Protest Against Apartheid. Fortunately, there were ambitious UB students and faculty who supported the Anti-Apartheid movement with their attendance at the seminar held at noon in the Social Room, and the Reggae party held later that evening. It is with great pleasure that the Black Student Alliance announces the success of both events.

The seminar was centered around a video supplied by the African National Congress which gave an historical overview of the struggle and oppression occurring in South Africa, and a short interview of Winnie Mandela, the wife of Nelson Mandela, who presented the ideology of the ANC, and the dire state of affairs between the government and the black majority.

The BSA has access to more information from the ANC, and to Naomi Seavers, daughter of the renowned Anti-Apartheid minister Desmond Tutu. With these resources, more seminars were announced to be held later on in the school year to further the enlightenment of the situation in South Africa on campus and within the surrounding area.

The Reggae party went over very well with probably the best international crowd ever experienced at a UB mixer. There were people representing every continent on hearth feeling the positive vibrations being spun by Rasta George and Brother Levi of WVOF's Reggae Jamdown. There were also Free South Africa buttons, oils, incense and jewelry on sale, which provided a very rich cultural aura of music, aroma and oneness to the event.

Those who could not make it to this one really missed out on a rare and truly progressive occasion. There was a real sociopolitical cause and a pure feeling of unity -- which was a welcome departure from the material world we usually live in, where more is always better and wealth is directly associated with virtue. This was the culmination of the day, a subliminal protest where it was proved once again that we can all, regardless of race, creed or color, coexist peacefully by ignoring the synthetic animosity that society superimposes between us.

BACON LOGS 150TH WIN PURPLE KNIGHT BOOTERS TAKE 2 OF 3

by Steve Kavanagh
Sports Editor

Billy Manning has done it again.

Earlier in the season Manning starred in a 3-0 Purple Knight triumph but was overshadowed because teammates Mark Vanston and Joe Sander set new school records during the same game.

Manning must be experiencing déjà vu this week because this past Sunday coach Fran Bacon notched his 150th career victory while all Manning did was score five goals against Merrimack.

The Knights upped their record to 7-3-1 by defeating the University of Lowell, 4-1, and Merrimack, 7-1, over the weekend. Last week they dropped a 4-2 decision to C.W. Post in overtime.

Mark Vanston and Craig VanVoorhis also scored in the romp over Merrimack.

In Saturday's game against Lowell, Vanston tallied his second hat trick of the season and Steve Black chipped in with a goal. The win over the Chiefs was important in that UB improved its record in the New England Collegiate Conference to 3-1-1.

Manning and Francis Daniel scored in the loss to C.W. Post played on Long Island.

Bacon, the 1984 Division II National Coach of the Year, has now compiled a 150-111-27 career mark which includes nine appearances in NCAA post-season play.

Bacon coached the Knights to their winningest season ever last year (14 wins) and has a shot to eclipse that mark in 1985.

Heading into Wednesday's contest with Bryant College at Seaside Park, the Knights have seven wins with at least eight games to play. There is also the possibility of an NCAA playoff berth and a make up of the New York Tech game canceled by Hurricane Gloria.

It was an evening of Jamaican fun at the Student Center. IRIE ITES!

AN IMPORTANT LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

As I write this letter, I have mixed emotions because I don't know how to approach this issue as diplomatically as I would like. The issue I'm speaking of is the quality of the Scribe and its contents thereof.

As a student, I expect to pick up my campus newspaper and feel as though it is a major source of information with regard to campus issues and affairs. Sadly stated, I do not feel that the Scribe adequately meets even the minimum requirements. Last Thursday's issue (Oct. 10) was disgustingly devoid of any real or relevant campus news.

The NEASC (New England Association of Schools and Colleges), an accreditation team, recently visited U.B. regarding its re-accreditation. Nowhere in the Scribe did I see coverage on this vital issue. Every five years this University is up for review and I certainly want to know what the NEASC thinks are our strong and weak points.

The average student has no substantial source of information except for the Scribe.

LETTER

What is essentially needed is some gutsy investigative reporting that will shed some light on things like security and other vital issues.

You were kind enough to cover African Hunger in the last issue. Since you are interested in world issues why haven't you covered the Apartheid issue in which BSA (Black Student Alliance) is heavily involved with. BSA is a very newsworthy organization at this time. They are working very hard to see that this appalling situation is changed in South Africa.

As I flip through the pages of the Scribe, I seriously have to question whether or not the staff is spending its time on or off campus. The toll situation on the Connecticut Turnpike is something I can find information on in the Bridgeport Post. Remember who your audience is, the U.B. COMMUNITY! Please cover those topics related to them.

Coverage of Student Council and University Senate meetings are something I have yet to see in the Scribe this semester. Inform your readers about such issues and maybe they can have some input on what's going on. It certainly would make it easier on student leaders to have input from their constituents.

Finally, I would like to say that if I wanted to see pictures of who is studying at the library, I can go to Wahlstrom myself. Personally I think pictures are great but not to cover an entire centerfold of an eight-page paper of which half are advertisements. I realize you can't please all the people but at least try for a majority.

Anna Balonze
U.B. Student

A REPLY FROM THE EDITOR

Thank you for your criticism. Believe me, you are not the first person to mention the lack of news in the paper. You are just the first to write it to me in the form of a letter to an editor.

I wish to take this opportunity to explain a little about The Scribe. During the past two years, I was the News Editor. I spent my time covering "hard news," such as the BSA apartheid issue. It was who, what, when and where. Due to time constraints, I was unable to go deeply into an investigative story. I would have liked to.

This year, I assumed the responsibilities of Managing Editor. This role involves more "Production" oriented tasks. The job requires a minimum of twenty hours of work a week. If I had the time, I would also assume my role from last year as News Editor. Unfortunately, I, like you, am a student, and cannot devote thirty to forty hours a week to one of the many extracurricular activities I participate in on this campus. For this I apologize.

We NEED a News Editor. Pick up any issue from this year. Somewhere there is a plea for someone to assume this vital role. How about you, Ms. Balonze? Do you have some free time? Would you like to pitch in a free hand and try to solve the lack of news problem here? Any assistance that you, or anyone, would be willing to pitch in to the news department of The Scribe would be greatly appreciated.

How about some journalism students? At most colleges with a journalism major, there is an ample supply of students who wish to work on the school paper. At this school, however, they are required to work on another paper, The Black Rock Journal. Ask any journalism student if they have any free time after working for The Black Rock Journal. They will simply laugh. I happen to think the campus paper should be a first priority for the school journalism department. Unfortunately here it is not. It is looked down upon, laughed at. And maybe rightly so. It is kind of a Catch-22 situation. It lacks in quality, so they don't want to work on it. However, if they worked on it, the quality would surely be better.

So when you say, "I...question whether...the staff is spending its time on or off campus," I must reply (at this time), off campus, at the printer. Or off campus at home laying out the paper. I'm sorry I don't have more time; I wish I did. I'm sorry I don't have a larger staff; I wish I did. And I wish I had the news coverage to go to twelve pages, with advertisements spaced farther apart, but I don't.

Believe it or not, the lack of news is my biggest concern with The Scribe, but often times that concern must be pushed aside to get the current week's paper out on time. I am working on the problem. I have asked David Logemann to assume a greater role at The Scribe, as co-managing editor, and he has accepted.

Together we will work to get this newspaper back to being a "news" paper, not just paper. Thank you for your concern, and please be patient while we try. In the mean time, why not stop by and lend a hand.

LOOKING AT THE REAL WORLD

Is Credit Worth Getting In College?

by Alan Oyugi

You are on your way home for the holidays, you are at the airport or bus station and you reach into your pocket to get money only to find you are broke. Maybe the plane or bus is cancelled and you are stranded with no money. We have all heard of Visa, MasterCard and American Express. Is it worth having one of these cards in college?

Getting credit is not easy. For Juniors and Seniors, banks understand the need and are trying to make it easy for them. If you look in classrooms or at the bookstore there are applications for these credit cards. These banks will in most cases give Juniors and Seniors credit cards with a small credit limit to start you off. A co-signer is not necessary in these plans.

Citibank, for example, believes that they are investing in your future. They will give you a credit card even if you do not have a job or credit rating. A simple letter from the school stating your status may suffice. They offer a starting credit limit of $500 which can increase over time and offer discounts for using the card. You can get money from many 24 hour banking centers all over the country.

This head start tries to make it easier to get loans when you graduate, maybe you can get the sports car you always wanted or even personal loans when you get out of school. Visa and MasterCard have annual card costs between $20-$30 dollars a year. You have an option of paying your entire bill or paying a portion of it. By paying the en-

U.S. INTERCEPTS EGYPTIAN PLANE WITH HIJACKERS

by Alan Oyugi

Last Wednesday the hijackers of the vessel Achille Lauro struck up a deal with the Egyptian government which resulted in the surrender of the hijackers to Egyptian authorities off Port Said. The Egyptian government promised them a safe passage out of the country. During this time, Egypt claimed it did not know of the death of the American on board.

Meanwhile the United States learned that the hijackers were to be secretly moved out of the country. United States officials and intelligence experts were very closely monitoring the movements of the Egyptians and pinpointed the exact whereabouts of the hijackers.

President Reagan was kept informed at all times of what was going on. Reports said that all conversations of high level Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak told the press that he did not know the whereabouts of the hijackers and said they were flown out of the country. This proved to be false and the U.S. knew where they were.

The Presidents plan was to intercept the plane carrying the hijackers and force it to land so they can capture the hijackers. An Egyptian airliner was in flight when four U.S. F-14s fighter planes from the U.S. carrier Saratoga intercepted the plane and forced it to land in an army base in Italy. No shots were fired and no injuries occurred.

The American killed, 69-year old Leon Klinghoffer, was said to be shot in the head then thrown overboard. The hijackers were charged by the Italians with piracy, hijacking and murder. Both the U.S. and Italian governments wanted to prosecute the hijackers. They can only be charged by one government. In a press conference on Friday President Reagan's message to the terrorist was "you can run but you can't hide." In Egypt President Mubarak denounced the American interception of the airliner.

APARTHEID LETTER

Friday Oct. 11 was identified as National Day of Protest Against Apartheid (called for by the African National Congress - ANC - a liberation group formed in 1912 by black south africans.) The black student alliance re-named the student center Nelson Mandela Center in honor of the jailed A.N.C. leader. We also offered an educational seminar on apartheid. Included a film, made by the A.N.C., and an open discussion afterwards.

The major topic of discussion was how to educate this campus on the subject of apartheid. The B.S.A. will be giving monthly seminars on apartheid with a concentration of seminars in February, Black History Month. If you have any questions about apartheid please submit them to the B.S.A. mailbox in the student center at the information desk. We will answer all questions at the seminars.

PUERTO RICAN MUDSLIDES

by Alan Oyugi

Last Monday heavy torrential rains caused mudslides in Puerto Rico. Mayaguez, a city in Puerto Rico, was hardest hit. As of Sunday reports from Puerto Rico had the death toll estimated at 800. The search for bodies was abandoned on Sunday. President Reagan declared 4 cities as federal disaster areas.

A REGGAE THANK YOU

To the Editor

I wish to thank all those who made Reggae Jamboree 1985 a very special night to remember. I was very pleased by the new sounds that were introduced on campus Friday night. I was particularly impressed by the various ethnic groups that gave such a warm reception to Reggae.

Lyricaly, Reggae music express a sense of oneness among all men. The words are instructional and inspirational and are meant to motivate actions to right wrong. The music is full of life. It is the incarnation of mankind's deepest concerns, of suffering, hope, faith and beauty, of dreams which we all share, whether black, white, yellow, red or brown.

My assessment of the night is that it was a success. It was successful because it met its objective of bringing together members of the U.B. community.

As you all know UB's population is comprised of a plethora of ethnic groups. These include black and white americans, asians, latin americans, south americans, west indians, and middle easterners. There were members from every group (mentioned above) present. Now thats a mixer!!!

Because of the size of the social room at time it seemed that there were not many people present, although attendance was about 200. I spoke to many during and after the mixer and the consensus was that they all enjoyed themselves and were wondering when the next Reggae mixer would be.

This mixer is just one of the events organized by UB's black student alliance to provide an enjoyable and culturally enriching alternative to the U.B. community.

The BSA looks forward to continued participation in our upcoming events. Speaking of which; November 15 is the date for "The Cabaret", our annual semiformal dinner/dance featuring a live band as well as a D.J.. Ticket sales begin shortly and will be advertised.

On behalf of the BSA I wish you peace, success and the love of the Lord. Respectfully submitted, Dale Taylor BSA member Editor, of Umoja Magazine

Bernhard Center, Carlson Gallery

IMAGINATION VS. COMPASSION

by David G. Logemann

There is a striking contrast between art for advertising and photojournalism as art. The airbrushed and synthetic images in bright colors present the ideal, and the dark, bleak, black-and-white images of itinerant workers show the all-too-real.

The Southern squalor of Emmet's "Fruit Tramps" is an almost unnecessary study in ugliness. If it weren't for the skill of the photographer, the exhibit would be a horror show. As it is, the people and places are merely disturbing.

Emmet belongs to the school of "Sympathetic" photojournalists, those photographers who seek to display poverty with compassion. It takes weeks to become comfortable with the subjects and surroundings, and to reach the point where the photographs are a fair representation.

The viewer still must ask the question, "Why show it to me?" A partial answer is given in an explanatory essay posted next to the exhibit. The essay mentions the tenacity of these fruit tramps in the American south who are losing their traditional lifestyle, yet persist. This same essay becomes quite wordy before concluding with an attack on Reagan's "trickle-down prosperity." Of course, the bottom line is that these tramps are "exploited." Indeed they are -- by the photographer.

The feeling of pity evoked by Emmet's photographs is replaced by fascination as one looks at the Advertising Showcase exhibit. The work is better seen than described. The overall sense is that of beauty in an idealism that ranges from improbable to impossible, with a touch of very real.

Airbrush work has a glass leaning toward a bottle of vodka. Composite prints have a face looking through a doorway in the sky. Everywhere there are reflections.

Advertising photography show us life as we might like it to appear. The creative minds and skilled hands of advertising photographers bring a world of brilliance, fantasy and unlimited possibilities.

WRESTLING ROUNDUP

by Butch Einstein

The big boys are still at it. King Kong Bundy and Big John Studd are matched against Andre the Giant in two upcoming tag-team matches. Andre's partners will be Hillbilly Jim on Oct. 21st, and Hulk Hogan a couple of weeks later (that match to be on NBC).

Jesse "The Body" Ventura will trade his microphone for some tights when he battles Hogan for the title next month. In the meantime, Jesse's one-time tag partner, Randy "Macho Man" Savage, is moving up the ranks. More next time. Watch the topknot!

ROMANTIC VIDEO

There's not much of interest in rock videos these days, but some people are apparently still doing their jobs. The Norwegian group a-ha has come out with a very noteworthy creation in "Take on Me." The animation is excellent, and the story line is more romantic than any piece of pop culture should ever be. The song is already being overplayed by commercial stations, but the video is worth sitting through a few times. This one is too good for public consumption.

ZAPPA'S GUIDE TO PARENTAL GUIDANCE

At the recent Senate hearings on rock lyrics, Frank Zappa explained his criterion for judging albums: "A buzzsaw blade between the guy's legs on the album cover is a good indication that it's not for little Johnny."

KING COOK'S TRIVIA

by Steve Cook

It's scary to think that many of you will graduate from this school and you can't even answer a few mere trivia questions.

In fact, the "king" was only challenged by half as many people this week as the week before.

Maybe many of you can't read the Scribe because your eyes are still clouded with tears because of the poor, poor Yankees and Mets. I know I went through box after box of Kleenex.

Cheer up! Look at the bright side of the season. Ed Whitson won his first career fight and Keith Hernandez helped put a criminal behind bars. And to top it off George Steinbrenner only fired one manager so far.

Look, I'll even make the questions easier this week. Promise.

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS:

1.) Hank Aaron, 3,771 career hits.

2.) Greg Kosc was born in Bridgeport 4/27/49 and John Hirschbeck came into the world on 9/7/54 in the "Park" city.

3.) Darrell Evans of the Detroit Tigers hit his 300th career tater and knocked in his 1,000th career run in 1985.

Some of the peasants got the first three questions correct but (please excuse me) tripped up on the final puzzler.

4.) Noel Picard was the infamous St. Louis Blues defenseman who tripped hockey's greatest player, Bobby Orr, after he scored in overtime to notch the 1970 Stanley cup championship.

And now (drum roll please) what you all pray for Thursday's to come for.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTIONS!!!

1.) Who is the Oakland A's all-time total base leader?

2.) Where and when were lights first used in a World Series game?

3.) Who holds the record for most points scored in a N.H.L. game (10)?

4.) And at long last, a question from the only "Pure" professional sport - wrestling, which world wrestling federation champion is the brother of Randy "Macho Man" Savage?

Good luck maggots - you'll need it. Remember, bring your guesses to the Scribe office or look for the Trivia Box in Marina.
